Feedback from previous course participants:

* Qaqamba Mdaka (2023): "The course deeply anchored my commitment to the work of social justice. I now look at things with a social justice lens and this applies to my everyday life. The activities were very useful especially incorporating other forms of learning like the monopoly game."

* Linley Chiwona-Kartun (2021): "I really found the course to be very timely in my time of need. I was having difficulty with a case of age discrimination in admission to doctoral studies. The student happened to be a woman. It was thanks to my group mates in the course that we wrote a letter of condonation to the Vice-Chancellor of the university that we managed to change the age limit for women to be 50 years. The course gave me the tools to fight for social justice."

* Dr Mary Nel (course presenter): "I am passionate about the transformative power of education, and the Social Justice Trainers Course empowers those who are involved in social justice initiatives to discover innovative and collaborative ways to improve their social justice competency through education."
